

25 September 2009

For immediate release

First Audited Biofuels Report Published by Greenergy

- All targets exceeded as new sustainability principles pay dividends

London: Greenergy Fuels Ltd, the UK's largest biofuel supplier and a leading producer and supplier of road transport fuels, published today its first Annual Report on biofuels supplied in the inaugural year of the Renewable Transport Fuels Obligation [RTFO]. Audited by Pricewaterhousecoopers LLP, the report provides the first detailed review by any major oil company of performance against Government targets and shows that Greenergy, which supplies more than 12 per cent of all UK road transport fuels, significantly exceeded all targets:

- Average Greenhouse Gas Saving: Greenergy's focus on biofuels that deliver the greatest greenhouse gas saving delivered an overall carbon saving of 61 per cent versus fossil fuel equivalents against a target of 40 per cent. In practice this meant not allowing price to define biofuel selection and, wherever possible, seeking fuel derived from by-products.
- Data meeting environmental standards: despite limited availability of certifiable fuels, 43 per cent of biofuel Greenergy supplied met standards against a target of 30 per cent [51% for bioethanol, 37% for biodiesel]. This was achieved following Greenergy's development of sustainability criteria for Brazilian bioethanol and the introduction of a third party field audit programme.
- Data reporting on biofuel characteristics: increasing transparency in its biofuels supply chain mean that Greenergy achieved 81 per cent for data reporting against a government target of 50 per cent [86% for bioethanol, 76% for biodiesel].

Chief Executive, Andrew Owens commented: "We are pleased to have exceeded these targets. As the sector leader we will continue to go further, working with our agricultural suppliers on the ground to deliver sustainable greenhouse gas emission savings for the UK transport sector."

'Annual Report to the Renewable Fuels Agency' is also available for download from http://www.greenergy.co.uk/feedstock_sourcing/about_biofuels.html

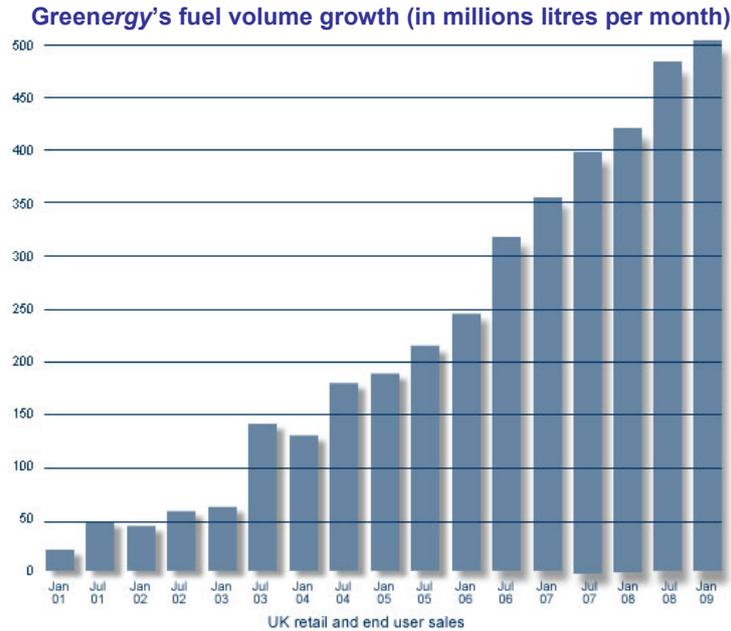

ENDS

For further information, comment or interview please contact:
Alex Lewis, Head of Communications, Greenergy (+ 44 (0) 20 7404 7700)

Notes to editors

Greenergy is now one of the largest suppliers of fuel in the UK, with annual fuel sales totalling more than 6 billion litres. Its customers include the major oil companies and supermarkets, as well as bus, train and logistics companies.

Greenergy includes biofuel in all of its petrol and diesel to meet its RTFO obligations and in accordance with petrol and diesel standards.

For further information see www.greenergy.com